

The News & Observer

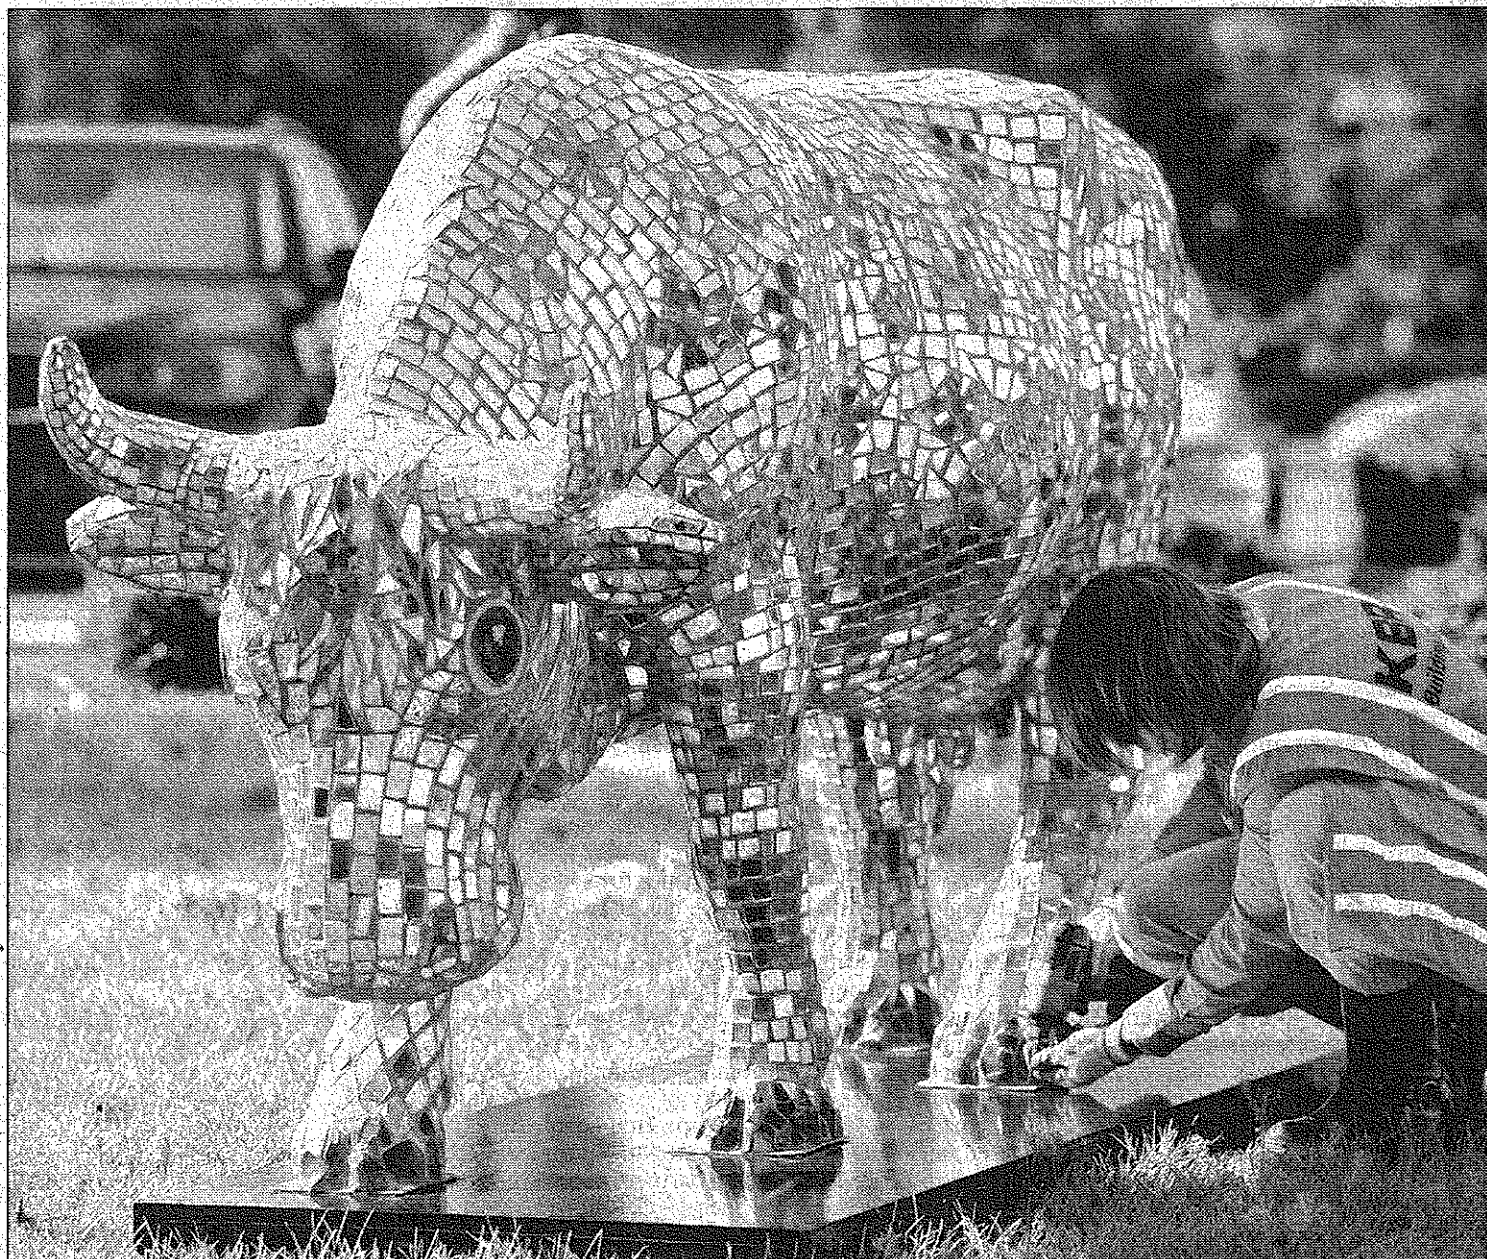

THURSDAY, JULY 25, 2013

newsobserver.com FINAL EDITION

TRIANGLE & STATE

Thursday, July 25, 2013 3B

BULL ON PARADE

HARRY LYNCH - hlynch@newsobserver.com

Installer Alpha Hall of KBR Building in Research Triangle Park anchors the feet of "Late Bloomer" to its platform Wednesday morning in front of the AMC Imax theater at the Streets of Southpoint in Durham. "Late Bloomer" is the 80th and last CowParade fundraising cow for the N.C. Children's Hospital, by Carrboro artist Erick Davis with the help of donated Ben Owen pottery accents. The bovine weighs more than 300 pounds.

» Online
Gotta have more cow: Watch a video of this cow sculpture being moved at nando.com/video.

The Herald-Sun

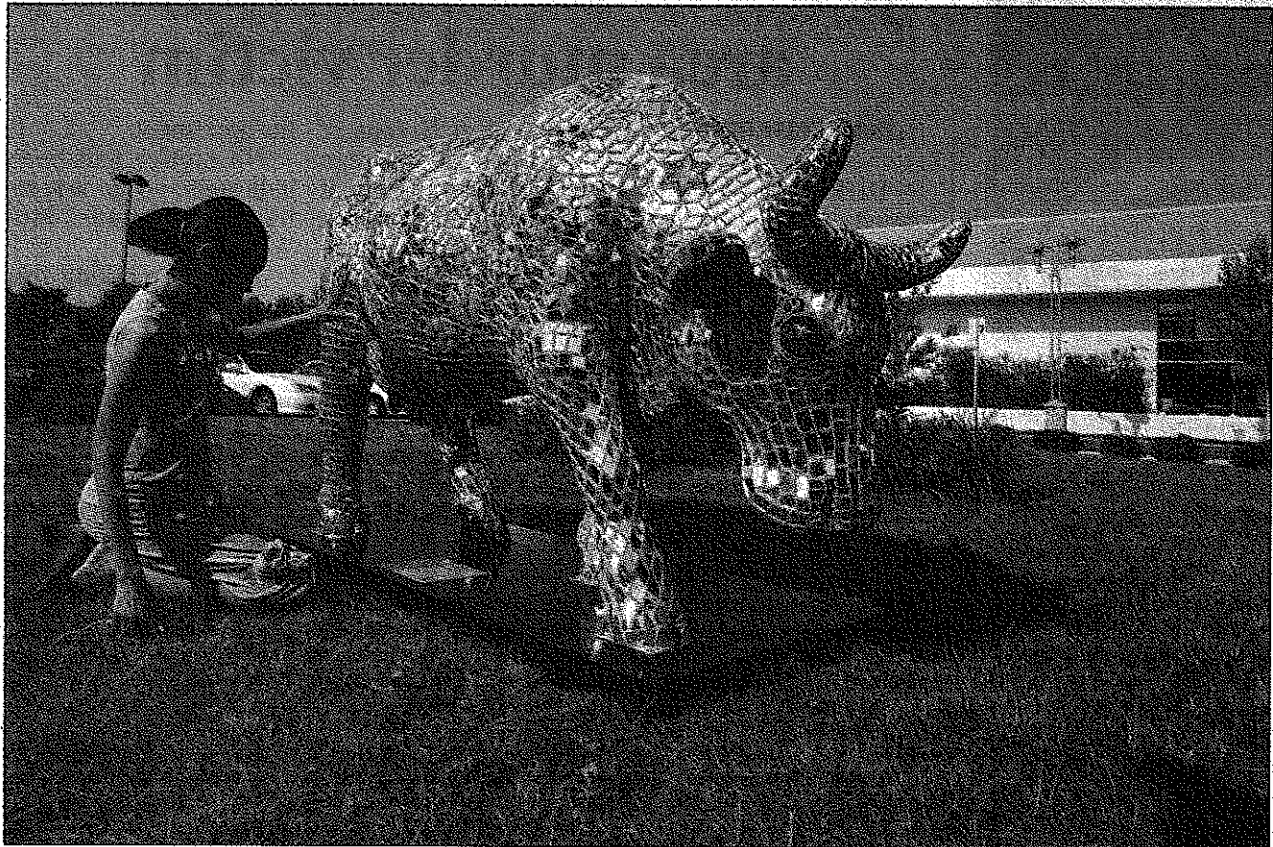

THURSDAY, JULY 25, 2013

HERALDSUN.COM

THURSDAY, JULY 25, 2013

THE HERALD-SUN | DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

Cash cow

The Herald-Sun | Christine T. Nguyen

Regina Hill, annual giving director at the N.C. Children's Hospital, places a plaque at the base of Late Bloomer, CowParade NC's 80th cow. Late Bloomer will be on display in a grassy area near Crate and Barrel at the Streets at Southpoint through the end of August. The glass mosaic cow uses pottery accents from Seagrove potter Ben Owen and Carrboro mosaic artist Erick Davis. Proceeds from the sale of the CowParade North Carolina cows during a public auction in February 2013 raised $300,000 for N.C. Children's Hospital.